

dren's children's children. The government likewise has set up national parks, land reserves, pollution regulations, and created protection for endangered species. A third standard demanded by the people involves that of education. Our government provides public schooling for every child in this country, so that they may grow up with the means to make bright futures for themselves.

Another area in which the American public and their administration have used strong ideals lies in the economy. We have always fiercely believed in a free enterprise system. The incentives of owning a private business and making profit instigated millions of citizens to work hard and develop the country. In doing so, the United States started growing as a capitalist giant through mining, farming, trade, industry, entertainment, and building, to name a few. The money brought in, new inventions, and immigrants eager to try their own hand in business never let the country look back.

The government did uphold and expand on such values, but it was the American voices behind them who presented these ideals and their own customary, unwritten morals. As already shown in the example on free enterprise, U.S. citizens have been zealous believers of hard work since the country's formation. The Founding Fathers set up a government and turned a loose group of states into a nation. Pioneers opened up the West. Immigrants introduced their ideas and joined the fight to advance America. Oil was found, railroads were connected, the Wright brothers flew the first airplane, women won the right to vote, America met victories in both World Wars, Dr. Jonas Salk found the polio vaccine, man landed on the moon, computers were invented, and we continue to speed down the Information Superhighway to new prospects on the horizon. The determination and devoted labor of all Americans has proved quite possible to be our greatest strength.

Besides working hard, the policy of helping others has long been a value which has made America great. Whether it be a neighbor in trouble like Mexico, a devastating earthquake in southern California, or the atrocious Oklahoma City bombing, Americans have come to the rescue. The Red Cross, 911 Emergency Medical Services, police departments, fire stations, and a multitude of other volunteer organizations come forth in times of need. We care about our brothers and sisters. U.S. citizens give money, volunteer time and talent, spread hope, and even donate their own blood and organs for each other. In a country where Good Samaritans live, good things are bound to happen.

Thus, by supporting the ethics of the Constitution and the values of hard work and love, the American people and their government have made our country the international force it is today. We value our freedoms and friends as much as hard work and free enterprise. We value education, the environment, and a peaceful world. We value all of these because we value the future of America. As the 21st century arrives, we shall accomplish new feats and set new goals and continue to make our great country even better.

INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES EDUCATION ACT OF 1996

SPEECH OF

HON. HELEN CHENOWETH

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, June 10, 1996

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of H.R. 3268, the IDEA Improvement Act of 1996. I have kept very close watch on this very important legislation because my personal concerns and the concerns of the countless Idahoans who have contacted me with their deep interest in the need for IDEA. I am very pleased to see that the bill before us reflects a balanced approach that I am proud to support. The legislation gives proper consideration to both the needs of the individual children and the needs of public schools that educate our children.

This bill takes major steps to improve IDEA. It provides new flexibility to parents. Parents will now have a well defined roll in the placement team as well as the learning plan team. This enhancement of the parents' roll gives them better access to school records and offers mediation services to resolve disputes before court costs begin running up.

Another important step this bill takes is the assistance it provides to school principals with additional flexibility to the schools. This legislation provides for increased local funding, simplified accounting, and fewer paperwork and procedural requirements. Most importantly this legislation creates safer schools for all students, disabled and non-disabled, and for teachers. This is accomplished by expanding opportunities for teacher training, ensuring the inclusion of appropriate supportive aids and services in the child's educational program; and enabling principals to quickly remove violent students and those who bring weapons or drugs to school from their current classrooms.

Don't take my word for it, listen to the comments I have received from the following groups.

The American Federation of Teachers wrote me:

The teachers are put in the best possible position to meet the needs of their students.

Idaho School Boards Association President-Elect, Vern Newby, wrote:

The re-authorization, as proposed, is a step in the right direction. The primary consideration is that local School Boards do what is best for all the kids.

Idaho Parents Unlimited Executive Director, Debra Johnson wrote:

We support H.R. 3268 and we appreciate your support of it as well. From the very beginning we have both agreed that maintaining a strong federal law that guarantees supports for students with disabilities is not only in Idaho's interest, it is in the nations best interest.

This legislation truly addresses the concerns that I have communicated to the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee, and for that all of the committee members have my heartfelt thanks. I would especially like to thank Chairman GOODLING and Chairman CUNNINGHAM for their very good, hard work that made for a strong bill that I am proud to support.

I urge all of my colleagues from both sides of the aisle to join me in support for this greatly needed reform and re-authorization of IDEA. By voting "yes" we ensure that all children will have proper opportunities to excel in a stable learning environment.

REFORMING GOVERNMENT

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, June 12, 1996

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert my Washington Report for Wednesday, June 12, 1996, into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

MAKING GOVERNMENT WORK FOR HOOSIERS

Hoosiers often tell me how they feel shut out from the political process. They say that Washington does not listen to them, and is more responsive to special interests than to their own concerns. Many have concluded that government either makes things worse or is incapable of making them better.

It has always been true that people in this country have been skeptical of power, and our system of government, with its checks and balances, reflects that view. Our citizens have long cherished the right to strongly criticize their leaders, and that attitude can be a healthy one.

But public cynicism today is severe, intense, and stronger than it once was. A top priority for elected officials must be to restore confidence in government. People want to see that the government is on their side, working to help not hurt them.

A key element of any reform program must be to make government more responsive to the needs and concerns of its citizens. That means opening up the political process, reducing the role of special interests, and making elected officials more accountable. Congress, with my support, has taken steps to these ends, but more needs to be done.

MAKING VOTING EASIER

Congress, with my support, approved a law in 1993 to ease voter registration procedures, and the results have been encouraging. Since the law went into effect in 1995, almost 10 million more Americans registered to vote, including about 500,000 Hoosiers.

BANNING GIFTS

The House, with my support, passed a bill last year to ban all gifts to Members, with limited exceptions for close family and friends. There is simply no reason to take valuable gifts, meals or vacations from lobbyists.

STRENGTHENING LOBBYING RESTRICTIONS

I voted for a tough lobbying reform law last year that requires paid lobbyists to disclose who pays them, whom they lobby, what issues they lobby for, and how much they are paid to influence the government. This should help make the system more open and accountable.

APPLYING WORKPLACE LAWS TO CONGRESS

Last January Congress passed a law to apply private sector laws to Congress. This law was based on a recommendation of the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress, which I co-chaired. The legislation applies key workplace laws to Congress, including overtime, workplace safety and anti-discrimination rules.

REFORMING CAMPAIGN FINANCE LAWS

The House leadership has pledged to take up campaign finance reform this July. I regret it has taken the leadership so long to bring this priority item to the floor. My view is that genuine reform must include the following elements.

First, the importance of political action committees (PACs) should be reduced. We should cap total PAC contributions to a candidate and reduce the limit on contributions from a single PAC.

Second, Members of Congress should be prohibited from running "leadership PACs," which a few Members, including leaders in both parties, use to gain power and influence over other Members for their own personal agenda.

Third, Congress should limit the flow of "soft money" and "independent" spending into political campaigns. Such spending, which is made by or on behalf of corporations, wealthy individuals, and other organizations, falls outside normal federal campaign finance restrictions, and has been abused by both parties in recent years.

Fourth, reforms should emphasize the importance of grassroots political fundraising over big-ticket donors. The number of large contributions should be capped.

Fifth, Congress should examine ways to encourage voluntary campaign spending limits, such as providing reduced-cost television and radio time to candidates who abide by the limits.

Sixth, Congress must give more authority and support to the Federal Election Commission to crack down on election law violations.

FREEZING CONGRESSIONAL SALARIES

I have consistently voted against congressional pay raises during my time in Congress, including the most recent increase in 1989; and for the last several years, have supported the freeze on Members' salaries.

CUTTING CONGRESSIONAL PENSIONS

The House will likely consider proposals this summer to reduce congressional pension benefits, and ban pensions to Members convicted of crimes. Possible reforms include increasing Members' personal contributions and capping total pension benefits. I voted last year to reduce congressional pensions.

LIMITING THE CONGRESSIONAL FRANK

Since 1992, with my support, the House has cut its mailing budget by more than 70%, banned mass mailings within 90 days of an election, and required all mass mailings to be approved by a bipartisan franking commission to ensure they are substantive and non-partisan.

REFORMING ETHICS PROCESS

I have introduced a bill to create an outside panel to investigate charges of misconduct against Members. The Ethics Committee has increasingly been unable to fully and fairly investigate, prosecute and judge ethics complaints against fellow Members.

REGULARIZING REFORM

In early 1995 the House, with my support, approved several internal House reforms, including proposals to eliminate three committees and cut committee staff by one-third. I have introduced a bill to regularize this type of reform effort by having Congress take up reform proposals every two years, rather than do one-shot, omnibus packages every twenty or thirty years.

CONCLUSION

No issue is more important than the restoration of the confidence of Americans in their government. Americans will forgive government's honest failings if they believe that it cares about their needs and is trying to do a better job. Members of Congress have an obligation to earn the public's respect and trust. Congress has taken some important steps, but other, broader reforms are necessary if Congress is to be the truly representative body the people deserve and the nation's founders intended.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS, EXPORT FINANCING, AND RELATED PROGRAMS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1997

SPEECH OF

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 1996

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3540) making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes:

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment, which would prohibit IMET—foreign assistance for military education and training—to the Government of Indonesia.

For over 20 years, international human rights advocates have been calling attention to abuses by the Indonesian Government in its occupation of East Timor. There is evidence that United States military assistance has helped to further the atrocities in East Timor.

Indonesia's armed forces invaded East Timor in 1975, only weeks after East Timor had attained independence from Portugal. Since then, the Indonesian army has carried out a campaign of what amounts to ethnic cleansing against the Timorese through a program of forced migration. Persecution has been particularly harsh against the Christian majority.

More than 200,000 Timorese—out of a total population of 700,000—have been killed directly or by starvation in forced migrations from their villages since the Indonesian invasion.

There are recent reports of a renewed campaign of repression of Catholics in East Timor. These reports include atrocities such as the smashing of statues of the Virgin Mary. The campaign has also been directed personally against the Catholic Bishop of Dili, Bishop Belo. His phones are tapped, his fax machine is monitored, his visitors are watched, and his freedom of movement is restricted. But Bishop Belo persists in his courageous efforts to defend justice, peace, and the preservation of the dignity of his people. Recently, he has set up a church commission to monitor human rights abuses, and a radio station to disseminate information and news.

Mr. Speaker, the people of East Timor comprise a sovereign nation. They differ from most Indonesians in language, religion, ethnicity, history, and culture. They are entitled to independence and freedom. And in the meantime, they are entitled to fundamental human rights including the freedom of religion.

Supporters of expanded IMET for Indonesia argue that since one of the purposes of such aid is to educate the military about human rights, we should provide such aid no matter what they do. But this presumes a willingness on the part of the government to change its dismal record. In the absence of such willingness, the only real effect of expanded IMET is to send a signal to the world that our disapproval of the Indonesian military—which we expressed after the 1991 massacre by cutting off all IMET—has softened. This is the wrong signal at the wrong time. We must not put our stamp of approval on a regime that massacres children in churchyards and then remains defiant.

I urge a "yes" vote on the amendment.

TRIBUTE TO MAJ. SCOTT BURAN

HON. JACK REED

OF RHODE ISLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, June 12, 1996

Mr. REED. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize an exceptional officer of the U.S. Marines in Maj. Scott Buran. This week, Major Buran completes a highly successful tour as the Marine Corps' assistant liaison officer to this body over the past 4 years. It is truly a pleasure for me to recognize a few of his many outstanding achievements.

A native of Vestal, NY, Major Buran became dedicated to the service of this country by following the fine example of his father, Lt. Col. Frank Buran. A retired Marine officer with his own impressive achievements, the elder Buran led marines during the amphibious assault on Iwo Jima during World War II and later during the Korean war. Following in his father's footsteps, Major Buran was commissioned in the Marine Corps on May 15, 1982, upon his graduation from the State University of New York via the Platoon Leaders Course Program.

Upon completion of The Basic School in Quantico, VA, Second Lieutenant Buran attended the Artillery Officer Basic Course at Fort Sill, OK, before reporting for duty with the First Battalion, Eleventh Marines at Camp Pendleton, CA, in August 1983. With 1/11, he served successively as a forward observer, adjutant, and battery executive officer.

In July 1985, First Lieutenant Buran joined Marine Barracks Subic Bay, Republic of the Philippines, for duty as a platoon commander and guard officer. Completing a successful 14 months in the Philippines, he returned stateside in the winter of 1986 for his new assignment at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, CA. Here, newly promoted Captain Buran contributed immeasurably to the process of making marines while serving successively as a platoon, series, and company commander, and finally as the S-3 training officer.

After a 6-month return to school at Fort Sill for the artillery officers advanced course, Captain Buran returned to the Fleet Marine Force in November 1989. Just 4 months later, he deployed with 3rd Battalion, 10th Marines as an artillery battery commander for duty in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. Serving with distinction, Captain Buran participated in the liberation of Kuwait City.

Captain Buran arrived at the Capitol in August 1992 for duty as the Marine Corps assistant congressional liaison officer. Soon thereafter, he was advanced to the grade of major. In this capacity he has been instrumental in providing Congress with a working knowledge of the Marine Corps. Most importantly, Mr. Speaker, Maj. Scott Buran has come to epitomize those qualities that we as a nation have come to expect from our marines—impeccable integrity, moral character, and absolute professionalism.

I had the privilege of traveling with Major Buran to Somalia and to the former Yugoslavia. His superb professionalism, mature
